1) What’s ORCID?

ORCID is ...

The database of individual researcher's research activities

- The "ORCID iD" which is unique to each individual eliminates the problems of the same names, common in other databases, and allows others to distinguish your own research activities.
- The source of all records is indicated, ensuring the authenticity of the records through the notation of the data source name.
  * Data registration by yourself is also possible (with some exceptions).
- The ORCID records can be linked to various databases.
- In addition to your research activities such as publication information, your peer-review records are also registered if the journals take that option (confidentiality is maintained).

Anyone can register for free.

It only takes a minute to register!

Thank you for creating your ORCID identifier. Please verify your email ac[redacted]plete your registration and gain access to manually edit your record: click the following link and sign into your ORCID record. If you can't click th[redacted]aste it into your browser's address bar.

Verify your email address

https://orcid.org/verify-email/[redacted]?lang=en

Your 16-digit ORCID identifier is [redacted], and your full ORCID iD and the link to your public record is https://orcid.org/[redacted]

Next steps:

1. Add more information to your ORCID Record

Access your ORCID record at https://orcid.org/my-orcid and add more information to your record. If you haven't already done so, we strongly recommend that you add more than one email address to your account, since our system checks names and email addresses to prevent the creation of duplicate records.

Funders, publishers, universities, and others use the information contained in your ORCID record to help reduce the record-keeping they ask from you. Increase the information you can share by adding other names you are known by, professional information such as your affiliation, biography, and keywords, funding you have received, and works you have created or contributed to your record.

See our tips for six things to do now that you have an ORCID iD. For tips on adding information to your ORCID record see: https://support.orcid.org/hc/articles/360006896894

2. Use your ORCID iD when publishing, applying for grants, and more

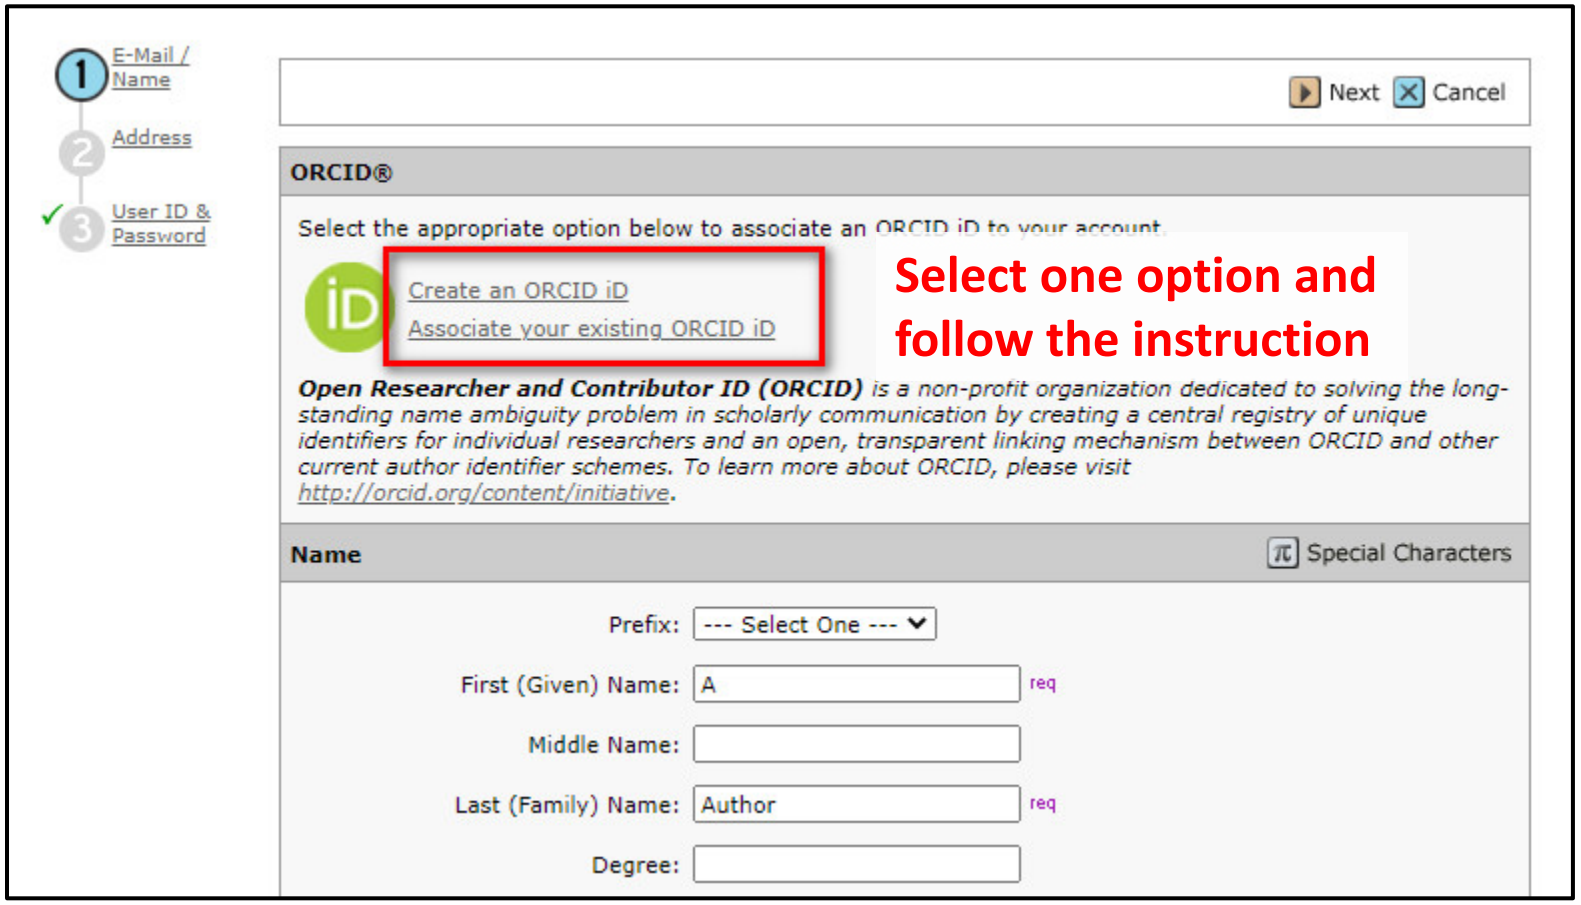
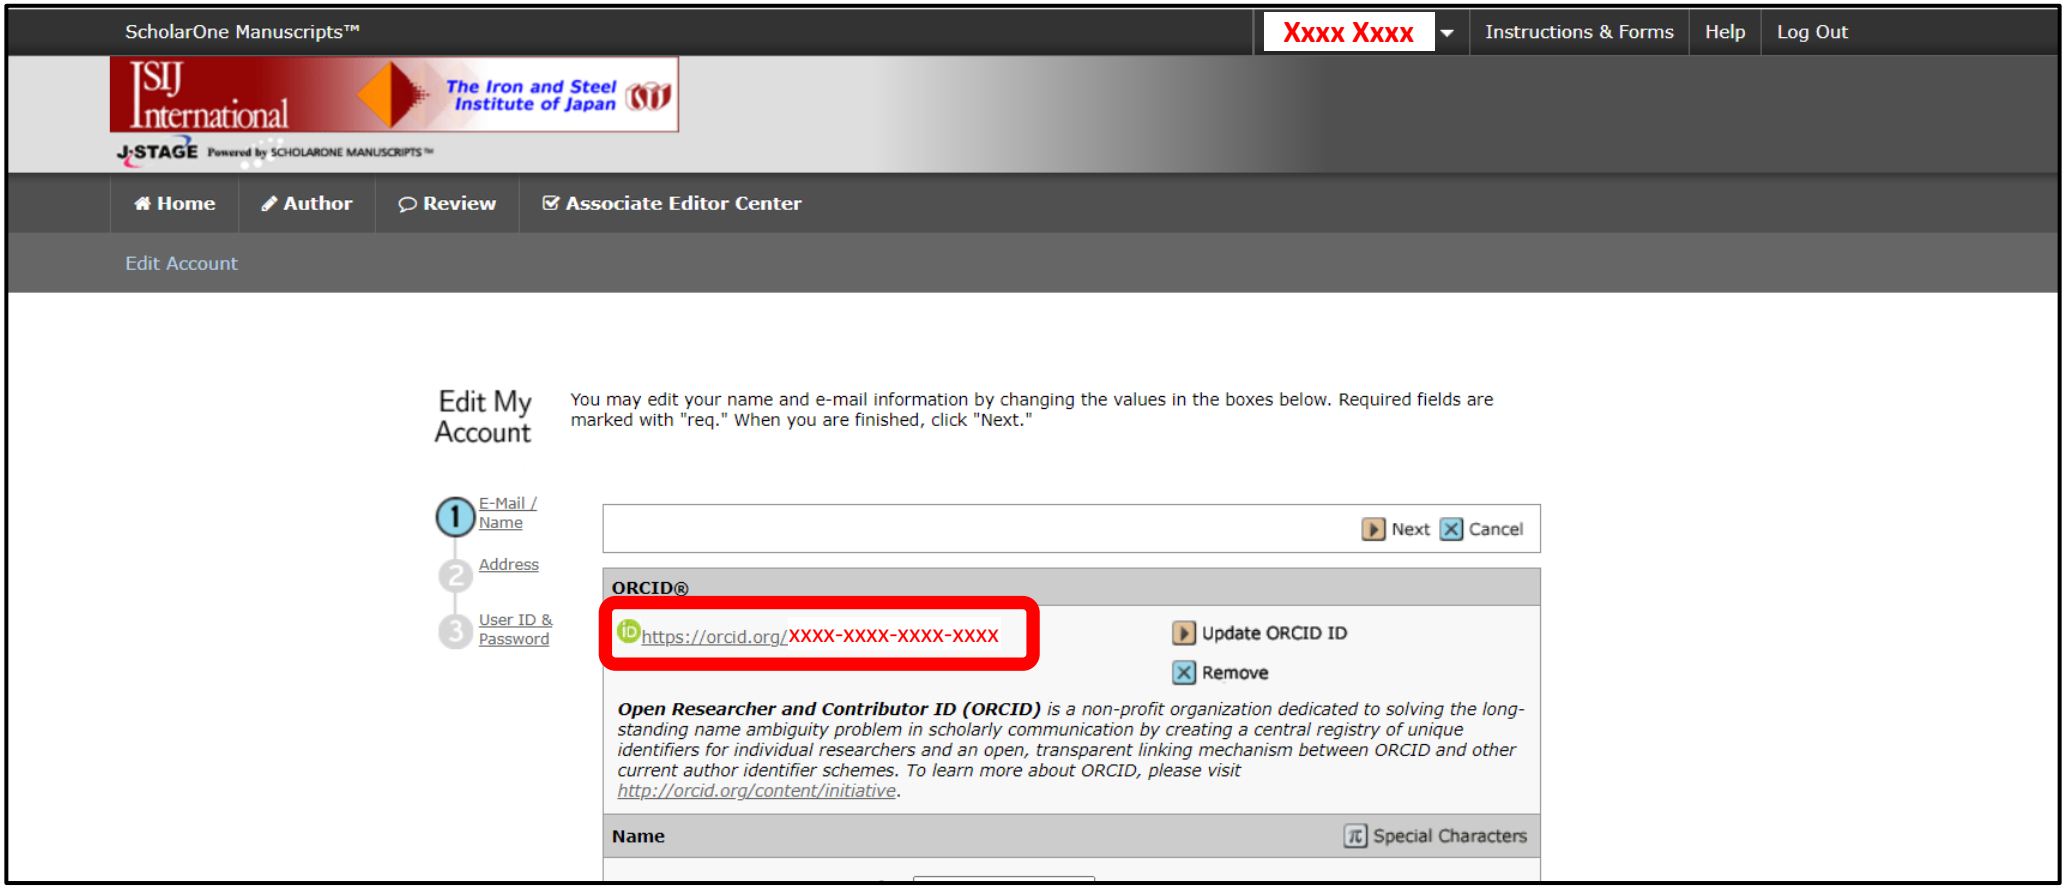
3) Association between your ScholarOne account and ORCID iD

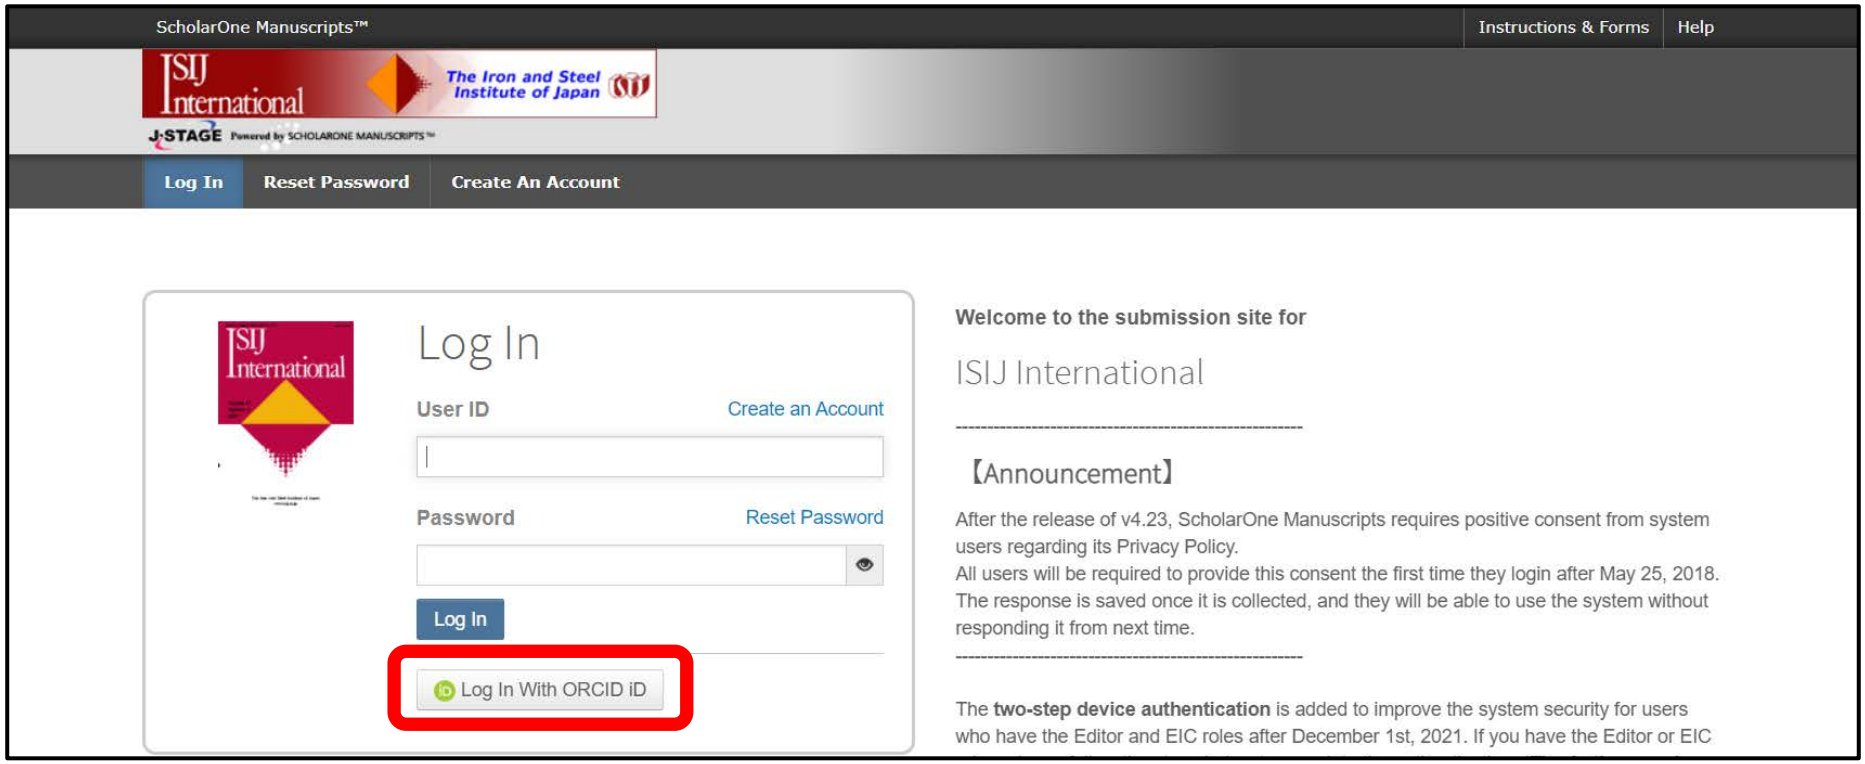
When your ScholarOne account is not associated with the ORCID iD, the following window appears.





When the association is successfully done or your ORCID iD has been already associated, you may see this window.

Please confirm that your ORCID iD is shown.



Merits to associate your ScholarOne account and ORCID iD:

1) Your publication information is automatically registered to your ORCID iD record via ISIJ – Crossref.

 Necessary to approve the authentication email from Crossref at the first time

2) The electrical hyperlink to your ORCID iD is added to the publication PDF file.

3) You may log in the ScholarOne sites by your ORCID iD if accounts are associated (See above).

 Not necessary to memorize your "many" ScholarOne accounts if all are associated with your ORCID iD.
